

Nomura Appoints Filippo Zorzoli as Head of Global Markets Sales, EMEA

London, September 1, 2025—Nomura, the global financial services group, today announced the appointment of Filippo Zorzoli as Head of Global Markets Sales for Europe, Middle East, and Africa (EMEA). Based in London, Zorzoli will report to Nat Tyce, Head of Global Markets, EMEA and Global Co-Head of Rates, and to Samir Patel, Global Head of Global Markets Sales.

Zorzoli brings more than two decades of experience in senior sales, trading, and structuring roles at leading financial institutions. His most recent position was Global Head of Rates and Solutions Sales at Barclays, where he led a team of 160 professionals across seven global offices. Prior to this, he held key positions at Bank of America Merrill Lynch, including Head of Structuring for EMEA and Head of EMEA Rate Sales, Repo Sales, and Structuring. Zorzoli began his career at Goldman Sachs in fixed income structuring and later co-headed the equity exotics trading desk.

Nat Tyce, Head of Global Markets, EMEA and Global Co-Head of Rates, said: "We are confident that Filippo's deep understanding of the EMEA client landscape combined with his extensive product expertise will help us build on the strong foundations established under Gary Hyman's leadership and drive the next phase of client franchise growth in EMEA."

In a related move, Gary Hyman will transition from Head of Public Side Sales, EMEA, to the newly created position of Vice-Chair of EMEA Global Markets, based in Dubai. In this role, Hyman will leverage his strong internal and client networks to support Nomura's growth plans in the region.

Zorzoli's appointment and Hyman's new role underscore Nomura's commitment to strengthening its Global Markets division and expanding its presence in the EMEA region.
